NOTES

1. ALL Princeton Seminary students considering internships are invited to attend. This is your opportunity to talk informally with people engaged full time in ministry, who will be willing to share their experiences with you. Part of the annual Intern Conference.

2. Dr. Savage is author of "The Apathetic and Bored Church Member." The program is sponsored by the Presbytery of New Brunswick.

3. Ms. Ramos is noted for her work in providing shelter for battered women in Hackensack. She began by opening her own home as a shelter. Domestic violence is a growing concern in our society--a problem which can be encountered in every parish. Ms. Ramos encourages you to bring your questions about spouse abuse and the legal, social, political and theological aspects of the problem, for group discussion. Cosponsored by the Social Action Committee and The Women's Center.

4. The Seminary Community will produce this MacLeish play this semester. Anyone with interest or skill in acting, set design or construction should appear on one of these dates. Seminary spouses, faculty, administrators and staff are warmly invited. This will be a chance for some variety of expression within a support community.

5. The stoles and albs to be displayed have been made by Vietnamese refugees in whose resettlement two years ago the Princeton Seminary Stewardship Committee assisted. As part of a self-support program the Vietnamese have formed a vestment guild, Paschal Arts, which to date has sold almost 250 items. Doreen (Mrs. Arlo D.) Duba, who has worked with the three families represented, will be in the Campus Center, 10 A.M. - 2 P.M., to take orders or sell the vestments displayed. The event is arranged by the Stewardship Committee to continue to assist these families.

6. Mardi Gras Dinner Menu: Melon Balls, Steamboat Roast, Chicken Creole, Spanish Rice with Shrimps, Fried Filet of Sole, French Fries, French-cut Green Beans Amondine, Caesar Salad with Diced Chicken, Strawberry Shortcake, Rolls/Butter, Coffee, Plantation Punch. Seminary Community invited. $2.50 to non-ticket holders.

7. This program continues the dialogue begun at the Seminary Conference Town Meeting on 10 November. Issues include what is (or is not) helpful in field education experiences as students prepare for ministry, and what barriers women and minority students find on their way to effective ministry. Held during the annual Intern Conference; includes several Teaching Church pastors.

8. Mrs. McMichael, the daughter of musicians, began playing the piano at 5 and her studies as a flautist at 11. At Ohio State University she was solo flautist with the Concert Band and a member of the flute choir and various chamber groups. For two years a student with John Krell of the Philadelphia Orchestra, she has been accepted as a student by Samuel Baron of The Juilliard School and the State University of New York at Stony Brook. She teaches flute at the Westminster Choir College Conservatory and has many private flute and piano students in the area. Her husband, Gary, is an M.Div. Senior.

Mrs. Houston's early-life harp lessons were with her mother, a former harpist with the Memphis Symphony Orchestra. Harpist for five years with the Memphis Youth Symphony, she has studied with Alice and Jeanne Califoux and with Reinhardt Elster and is a graduate in music of Rider College. She and her husband, Horace, are both PTS students.

Mrs. Shiley, an honors graduate in Music Education of Skidmore, received that college's highest honor for piano playing, the Louis Edgar Johns Award; she was accompanist for the Skidmore choirs, the dance department and numerous soloists. As assistant director of choral music at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, NJ, she co-hosted and conducted her high school choir in a WPIX-TV Christmas Eve Special; was assistant director and assistant choreographer for productions of Kismet and Kiss Me Kate; and accompanied the community choir during their three-week Friendship Ambassadors tour of Poland. Mrs. Shiley, who is studying with pianist-composer Seymour Berstein, teaches piano and maintains an active schedule as solo pianist and as accompanist.

9. Dr. and Mrs. Moffett has both done extensive missions work in Asia and will share their rich experience. Dr. Moffett is Associate President of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Seoul; Eileen Moffett is serving this year as the PTS Assistant Director of Professional Studies.

10. Renovation of the three large PTS dormitories is a top priority. The Seminary was recently advised of a grant enabling work on Alexander Hall to begin. To make Alexander ready for September occupancy, work must start this spring on non-residential areas; the major portion will begin 31 May. THE MEETING IS OPEN to Seminary Community members who have an interest in the project or who wish to make suggestions.

11. Dr. Wright-Saunders, a non-homosexual, and a 1975 M.Div/M.S.W. graduate of PTS, is an ordained minister in the United Church of Christ. He will provide an independent perspective on the causes and nature of homosexuality and lesbianism. Ms. Krody, an editorial assistant on The Journal of Ecumenical Studies, is coordinator of the U.C.C. Gay Caucus. Ms. Gittings is a member of the American Lesbian Association and the National Gay Task Force. Mr. Gibson (PTS '66) will comment on Biblical and theological sources involved in a Christian understanding of same-sex relationships. Each will make a 10-minute presentation.

Mr. Johnson will show a 30-minute documentary film on his life and the ordination debate his candidacy for the ministry generated. The first avowed homosexual to be ordained a Protestant minister in this country, he heads the Gay Caucus of the United Church of Christ. He is the co-author of "Loving Women--Loving Men." Mr. Davidson, who served on the UPUSA 19-member Task Force on Homosexuality, will explain its recent report. He is pastor of the West Park Presbyterian Church, New York City.

The Social Action Committee has placed a study kit of articles on homosexuality (including various viewpoints on ordination) at the Speer Library Reserve Desk.

12. EVERY FRIDAY IN LENT we are asking students to FAST during lunch and dinner. You can sign up in front of the dining hall all next week. We will have a time of worship and dedication at 6 P.M. on those Fridays. Join us and give as to the Lord. Proceeds from the rebate will go to Bread for the World. For more information, contact: Lesley A. Davies, Sherry Jones

13. Lent is beginning--and so is the planning for the Paschal Vigil. Anyone interested in helping to develop this service see Arlo Duba or Judy Gerlitz. Some professors have indicated their willingness to permit class members to coordinate class projects with the Vigil. We need interpretive material for the Creation, Exodus, several prophetic passages, the incarnation-Resurrection, and the Eschatological Banquet. If you wish to participate in this way, the Steering Committee for the Vigil needs to know by FRIDAY, 10 FEBRUARY.

BORN OF WATER AND THE SPIRIT

John 3:5

A new semester. It's too cold out there, too hot in here. Why this course? Can I teach it? (Can I take it?) Can she/he ever be a minister? Can I?

Why do we have to give grades? And why get them? Why isn't the grade in yet? Sometimes I despair. Will I make it? Yet... I've been baptized. Or does that mean anything to me? Sometimes it all seems like ashes - at other times alleluias.

And this week we begin the journey of Lent. The Journey from Galilee to Jerusalem.

As the journey begins Jesus speaks of being delivered up and of rising again on the third day. "Are you able to be baptized..?" he asks. At the end of the journey he receives his baptism, and he assures us,"with the baptism with which I am baptized, you will be baptized" (see Mk. 10:32-39).

At the end of the journey we celebrate the baptism. We are buried with Christ and we also rise with him. We pass through the waters. We are filled with his Spirit. The gift of God is eternal life.

The central celebration of this passing from death to life is the Christian Passover or Pascha, of which every Sunday worship is a reminder. Historically, it is primarily celebrated at the Paschal Vigil which we will celebrate on Easter Eve, the night following March 25. On that night we are reminded of the "mystery" of our salvation, more vividly than at any other time. The Paschal Vigil service is a celebration of this mystery. It is a commemoration of the saving act of Jesus, proclaimed to be the Christ of God by his resurrection.

The theme of our preparation and of our Vigil service this year is rebirth, by water and the Spirit. We are inviting you to think about passing through the waters which is typified in our baptism.

In the Vigil, the Christian Passover, we see the unity of the covenants by which the Jewish people passed from Egypt to the Promised Land, and the new Israel is carried from death to Life in Christ. This is the Gospel, which announces that we have passed from sin to grace.

The Paschal Vigil was, in the early church, the epitome and summary of Christian worship. In it the Gospel was proclaimed. In it the people praised the Lord for his mighty acts of deliverance and salvation. In it the Word was preached and the sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper were celebrated. In it the ethical implications of the Gospel were set forth, and commitment was made to obedience to Jesus Christ.

We ask you to strongly consider being back on campus on March 25. Experience this historical worship. Be caught up in the telling of the biblical story. Renew your commitment.

This particular service is becoming more and more common in our churches. Perhaps it will soon be as common as is the Christmas eve service. Make it a point to experience it here and hopefully to participate in it. Know its potential (as well as its problems). Prepare yourself to lead such a service. And open yourself to the possibility of new commitment and new incorporation into the story of your faith.

As a part of the lenten journey, as a part of your preparation, come to the celebration of the Lord's Supper every Friday evening at 6:00 p.m. At that time we will consider parables and Scripture passages which bear on the Vigil experience. We will talk informally about sharing our faith and about symbols of that sharing. One means of sharing will be fasting each Friday. We will share with each other and with Bread for the World. This Friday night February 10, for example, we will talk about water and its significance. Water destroys and water refreshes. In the water of Baptism we are buried with Christ and we also rise with him.

So as we celebrate the Lord's Supper, we renew our own Baptism as we remember the Lord's death --- until he comes again.

Except a seed fall into the ground and die, it remains alone. Let us be planted during this Lent. Take up an obedience. Hear the Gospel again. And be born of water and the Spirit.

See you Friday evening(s), and at the Vigil.

FASTING AND FEASTING

"If it feels good do it." So proclaimed a bumper sticker at Princeton Seminary. "If it feels good, don't do it!" So we have caricatured the Puritan ethic.

Both statements are extreme, but there may be some Christian truth included in each. The first statement may give voice to an affirmation of the goodness of creation. When God created the world, he stopped and looked, and called it good, not once, but each day. We as Christians affirm the goodness of the created order. The deliciousness of food -- it is not a sin to enjoy it. The goodness of the sexual relationship -- it is not a sin to enjoy it. The beauty of the snow covered landscape, or of the symphony or the painting -- it is not a sin to enjoy them.

That is one side, but there is another. We as Christians affirm that we do not live by bread alone. We believe that we must not let the world force us into conformity. We are sojourners, affirming values and relationships beyond the created order. Our citizenship is in the kingdom of Christ.

So the beauty, goodness and joy of the creation are penultimate, not ultimate. So we deny ourselves the things of this world in order to affirm the values of the kingdom.

On the one hand we feast. On the other, we fast.

It is unfortunate that groups so frequently have come down on one side or the other of this polarity. In terms of logic, these two positions seem mutually exclusive. Actually, they describe a tension which ought to be present in us all.

The Westminster Directory of Worship included a chapter on fasting and feasting (Chapter XIV, "Of Fasting and . . . Days of Thanksgiving"). This chapter continued to be an official part of the standards of the Presbyterian Church until the 1960's. Incredible! Yes, Presbyterians "believed in fasting" until less than two decades ago. Not that we did much of it. The practice disappeared in the nineteenth century. But it was still on the books!

What is most encouraging is that the framers of the Directory put fasting and feasting together, in one chapter. There is a time for each, and each should be a part of our experience. There is a time when we discipline ourselves to restrict the enjoyment of the created order. In doing so we affirm that we do not ultimately live by bread alone, sex alone, beauty alone, by the material world alone. We deny the flesh in order to make an affirmation of the other dimension. To fast is to say in a radical way, i.e., with my very body, that I refuse to be governed, ruled by those demands that the world always seems to place upon us. Fasting is a radical protest.

There is also a time to feast. Although our feast is never complete, yet I can and must feast, precisely to transcend the world. Our feast is an affirmation of hope in a world where no harvest is all that the reaper desires, where no ecstatic experience has reached the ultimate, where no vocation brings the ultimate reward. So when we feast, especially within the context of the Christian festivals, we step out of this world into the kingdom which will be characterized by the marriage banquet of the Lord.

It is humorous that the framers of the Directory said that it is proper to observe fasts appointed by civil rulers, or by the General Assembly, but it strongly implied that it was not proper to observe those that were connected with the Christian year, especially Ash Wednesday and Good Friday. We can chalk that up to polemic necessity. What is fortunate is that fasting and feasting were not completely eliminated, and that fasting was so strongly stressed as an act of worship.

Today the importance of disciplined intake is being emphasized more by people with medical, ethical, economic, ecological and political interests than by theologians. Let's change that. Consider the theological dimensions of the following.

Without fasting, we can never really feast. One who is in a constant state of satiation descends to a level of insensitivity intensified by lack of contrast. A result of fasting is heightened awareness. It establishes a tension for which the feast is a release. It is identified with spiritual experience.

Fasting represents a willingness to move to mastery over our physical, emotional and intellectual powers. Difficulty arises when we see the fasting as meritorious in itself or as an achievement of mastery.

Fasting can provide us a most vivid mode of identification with the created order. In a banquet our attention is on the point of the celebration. The food is an occasion of joy. Our attention is elevated above the source, the process and the reality of the food. In fasting, we identify with finitude and the created entities of the finite order, such as the wheat, the environment, and finally our partaking which is temporarily curtailed. A further identification is with others, as we express oneness with the deprived, whose condition is made immediate and poignant to us. In weakness we may identify with the weak.

Fasting denies the ultimacy of the created order, e.g. of food, but it also affirms its necessity. Perhaps it is only when I deprive myself that I will be struck by my own need for finite provisions. And if fasting achieves its desired end, it will not result in mere identification. It must result in compassion for those who are deprived, whether by circumstance or as a result of human systems. Perhaps only when I fast will I become aware of the seriousness of structures of prejudice and oppression of which I am a part.

A number of people on the Seminary campus are planning to fast on Fridays during Lent. Accept the discipline. But let it not be selfishly superficial. Read Isaiah 58 again. A fast acceptable to God will end in compassion. It will bring us into unity with the created order. It will affirm that we do not live by bread alone. Proceeds from the Campus Center will go to Bread for the World. Come to the 6:00 p.m. celebration of the Lord's Supper each Friday. And in all, prepare for the feast, the breakfast of the Paschal celebration as we celebrate the Eucharist at the Paschal Vigil.

LENT: A TIME OF THE CHURCH

What? You didn't give up anything for Lent? And now you feel guilty? Oh, you're one that is fasting, and you really feel good about it? Sort of holy especially on Fridays? Either way, do you feel alone?

It is unfortunate that individualism has come to predominate Lent. In popular use we hear a great deal about self-denial, personal self-improvement and laudatory acts of mercy as the goal of lenten observance. From a biblical point of view we know that any attempt to be particularly pious is doomed to failure, and will result in either success and pride or failure and guilt. It is almost enough to make one forsake any observance of Lent. And this is exactly what many of our reforming forebears did.

But a careful look at the origins of Lent show us that this individualistic preoccupation is a perversion. In the beginning the period of preparation for the Paschal celebration was a community event, as was the celebration itself. Catechumens were to immerse themselves in the life of the community and in its antecedent story, the Scriptures. I believe we can show that it was this same communal emphasis that brought all members of the Body to share in the disciplined study and community worship. The observances of Lent in the first three or four centuries of the church were an expression of community solidarity. They reveal a scriptural hermeneutic as well, for they declare and express solidarity with the people of Israel and with Old Testament experiences.

The period of preparation for the catechumens was not a time to prove how good they could be. No. It was a time for them to live themselves into the community and for the community to shower itself upon them. It was, so to speak, a time for the graft to take (Rom. 11:7). For the old faithful ones, it was a time of disciplined caring, of rehearsing the story that brought the Body into being, and of considering the relation of the Body to the world.

But let us be even more pointed. Lent was precisely directed against those who may have thought that they, by their own efforts, (i.e., apart from the Body) could show themselves to be holy or worthy.

In other words, I believe that the point of Lent in the early church was diametrically opposed to the popular interpretation of it today. A friend of mine has said that the church through the ages and many Christians today have succumbed to the temptation of Lent itself.

The tracing of this historical inversion of Lenten understanding is itself a fascinating study. But even if we don't know this history, we should know that a historic understanding of Lent is possible. Such an understanding will preserve the communal, soteriological and ethical thrust of lenten observance. Such observance will focus on the community. It will involve study, worship, sharing and an effort to "share your bread with the hungry, to bring the homeless poor into your house,....to cover the naked" (cf Isaiah 58:5-8). It will precisely take our minds off ourselves, pointing rather to God and our neighbor.

The celebration of the Paschal Vigil is the culmination of such an understanding. The Vigil also affirms the essential and central significance of the believing community. It also expresses the unity and continuity of the Covenant community of the Old and New Testaments. The very structure of the Vigil virtually precludes any individualistic interpretation of the faith, while at the same time it beckons individuals to be incorporated in the drama of salvation.

So let's get off the "traditional," pious and moral understanding of Lent. Those who try to test their spiritual strength are sure to fail. But let us seek the strength of Christ in the community where we are supported and upheld in spite of our moral lapses and failings. Let us also take seriously that we are charged with being those who do the supporting. And let us move with eagerness to the Paschal celebration which dramatically expresses that it is not through our merit that the Lord brought us out of Egypt. It is not because we were able to prove our spiritual goodness. Indeed, while we were sinners, Christ died and rose. He engrafted us into the Body.

The Paschal Vigil is the foremost depiction of the church and as such it is the culmination of Lent, properly understood.

NOTICES

HYMNALS, COME BACK! — In the old days, when hymnals ran low in Chapel, a proctor would make the rounds through the dormitories to retrieve the wayward books. Friends, the time has come; but we no longer have such a proctor. So we ask you--faculty, students and staff--to do your lenten stocktaking; and if you find a Worshipbook, a Hymnbook or a Book of Common Worship (or a Chapel Bible) on your shelves, bring it (them) back. Lent is amnesty time, and we need the books for our worship.

HELP! — Now that the dust has settled, please turn in your schedule cards to the switchboard (main floor, Administration Building), so that we can help people find you. Thank you!

ARTS FESTIVAL: — Anyone interested in participating in the 14-22 April Arts and Music Festival, please contact Ben Silliman (921-0396) or Birda Buzan (921-0553). We particularly need help in visual arts--banners, graphics, slide shows, etc.; but the festival will include music, as well. NOTE THE CHANGE IN DATES FROM THOSE ORIGINALLY SCHEDULED--to accommodate some campus participants.

LENTEN FAST: Those participating in the Lenten Fast should be advised that, because of administrative difficulties, the money from meals will NOT go to Bread for the World. You are, however, encouraged to continue fasting; and Friday evening (6 P.M.) worship services will continue through the Lenten season.

VIEWPOINT: Extra copies of some issues of VIEWPOINT from last semester are available on the bench next to the "Xerox room" in the basement of the Administration Building. As for the coming semester's issues--write them yourselves! when the spirit, anger or interest moves you. The VIEWPOINT box is at the switchboard in the Administration Building.

STORY AND CHRISTIAN WORSHIP

"What's the story?" he asked. And when he heard it he was surprised to find that he was part of it.

Those of us who were in chapel during Black History Week found ourselves in the midst of a story. We were drawn into it. We were linked with it. We were grasped by it. And as the Rev. Yvonne Delk said, we cannot easily walk away from those whom we have remembered so vividly. The story made a claim upon us, and we disregard it at our peril.

Christian worship is basically remembering. It is ἀνάμνησις. Sermons, hymns, prayers, all of these can best be understood as ways of remembering. We remember our corporate past, preeminently expressed in Scripture. We remember the fragile yet tenacious ties that bind us together as Christians, sometimes having our scope of awareness stretched as happened to many of us last week. We remember the imperatives of the response to the Gospel as we are challenged to new obedience. And we remember the future to which we are called, the eschatological dimension of the Gospel.

Unfortunately, I am here reduced again to cognitive ways of describing what happens, or what ought to happen, in worship. I am focusing on the services of Black History week because they are an immediate illustration of what worship is. These services, especially the ones that used dance and testimony, were powerful exactly because they were experiential and enveloping. They struck a glancing blow. They reflected a story which did not hit us over the head, but which connected with us in a way which was more decisive than a jab from Leon Spinks. And the primary glow of that refracted and reflected light was the glory of God who stands behind the story and to whom the story ultimately refers.

These articles are supposed to focus on the Paschal Vigil. What does Black History week and "story theology" have to do with the Vigil? The services of Black History week are a graphic example of what I interpret to be the purpose of the Paschal Vigil. Every service of worship ought to be such a winsome and vivid telling of some aspect of the Christian story that it elicits a response of participation. It calls forth an almost involuntary but willing involvement in that story. The Vigil service deliberately utilizes more than just the spoken word. It utilizes all the arts. It involves members of the congregation by having them join in procession, by singing hymns, and hopefully by tapping their toes, clapping their hands.

The service, long to be sure, depicts the drama of the Judeo-Christian story. The old tried and true Protestant way of interpreting and calling into the story, the sermon, is there too. But there is more. And this service calls for more. This is the Christian Passover. It is the night when the greatest event of time and eternity took place. This is the night when all the law and the prophets are fulfilled. In this night the hopes and fears of all the years are brought face to face with eternity. It is high drama. It has to do with history (as did Black History. . .) but it is history recounted so as to refract its light into the human heart and to glorify God who meets us in the vis-a-vis, "My Lord and my God." In this act of worship we participate, we remember, we become involved with the story in such directness (which may be indirectness) that we are grasped by it, linked to it and drawn into its urgency.

In the Lord's Supper we are told by Jesus that as often as we eat the bread and drink the cup we "do," or "enter into" his remembrance. The Lord's Supper is the climatic and final dramatic action of the Vigil, when we are urged to remember so boldly, so indelibly, so decisively that there is a new person. In enacting the story by entering into it and letting it speak within us, we will find our perception of ourselves and the world is new. It is the experience of being buried and raised to new life with him.

Of course, this should mark all our worship. But it is a particular mark of the Vigil service. And we are better prepared for it after our worship of Black History week.

190th GENERAL ASSEMBLY SEMINARY ADVISORY DELEGATES

San Diego, California, May 16-24, 1978

Princeton Seminary has been invited to send nine United Presbyterian students as seminary advisory delegates who will sit with their presbyteries at the sessions of the annual General Assembly meeting in San Diego, California. The Assembly will convene Tuesday, May 16, in the afternoon, and will continue through the afternoon of Wednesday, May 24. Seminary delegates may speak on the floor of the Assembly and participate in committee deliberations, but do not vote.

Delegates, like commissioners, are reimbursed for travel expenses and receive a per diem payment to cover room and board. The total amount is paid on the last day of the Assembly to those who attended all sessions. No student should be a candidate if attendance for the entire period is not possible. The Seminary business office may arrange for an advance toward these expenses--with the understanding that travel will be booked through the Seminary's travel agent and that the entire amount will be repaid immediately after the Assembly meeting.

Elections for this privilege and responsibility will be held under the auspices of the Student Government, in the Campus Center foyer on Tuesday, March 14, between 12.30 and 2:00 p.m.

Although all students may vote, participation as a delegate is limited to United Presbyterian students currently enrolled in an M. Div. or M.A. program. The Youth Delegates provide a broad day representation at the Assembly so it is expected that seminary delegates will generally be persons under care of presbyteries as candidates for ministry.

Qualifying students who wish to be candidates may register their names in 101 Hodge Hall. Each is asked to indicate the presbytery which has her or him under care, membership in Senior, Middler, or Junior class, and whether elected to this opportunity in other years. (The average minister is elected a commissioner every 7 to 10 years.)

Names will be listed only if students submit a typed statement for the benefit of the student body's perusal. Your statement should address the following topics: (1) How, specifically, you believe your attendance at G.A. can significantly contribute towards your ministerial training; (2) What specific issue(s) or concerns(s) you wish to address--and why; (3)Past experience which indicates particular qualifications.

These statements should not exceed one type-written page. They are due Friday, March 10, at 12 noon, Room 101 Hodge Hall. Copies will be made available at the Library desk Friday afternoon.

The nine candidates receiving the largest number of votes will be Princeton Seminary's Advisory Delegates provided that this group includes at least three women and one person from a racial minority. If this representation is not achieved in the first nine, those in this group receiving the fewest votes will be replaced by those who received the largest number of votes in these two categories. Candidates nearest to the first nine in votes will be alternates who may be called upon to replace delegates who become ill or are otherwise unable to attend.

It has been assumed in earlier years that Seniors should have priority since this is their last opportunity and they probably will not be elected for a number of years in a new presbytery. Further, the seniors have studied United Presbyterian polity and program and are in a position to understand and contribute to the on-going process. However, members of other classes may be candidates; and in 1977, one Junior was elected.

Students are responsible for arranging their work so that examinations may be completed and papers submitted by the dates specified on the final examination schedule. Examinations are set for the period May 10-19; senior papers are due not later than May 12. Timely completion of academic requirements takes precedence over attendance at the Assembly. Conflicts over examination scheduling should be discussed with the Director of Professional Studies before arrangements to attend the Assembly are made final. Understandably, postponements are not available to seniors who wish to qualify for a degree in 1978, and will not be granted to others except in extraordinary circumstances.

THE FIRST SERVICE OF EASTER

It is strange how some things come back. Like candles. Calvin simply stated that candles were burning during the service of the Lord's Supper. He had no objection: And he was aware of the ancient conviction that burning lights remind the worshiper of Christ, the light of the world.

After a time of more than two centuries without candles, they probably came back into our services because someone thought they were a "nice" addition to a wedding or a special Christmas service. And it is difficult for us to see that "niceness" is not the criterion. A recovery of Biblical imagery is. And in that we are continuous with the Reformation.

The Easter Sunrise Service is another "nice" service, frequently delegated to the youth group. I want to suggest that what lies behind the sunrise service is the Paschal Vigil, and that we ought to consider a tactical move to restore the biblical imagery of this early morning service.

Indeed, if I had my preference, the Paschal Vigil at Princeton Seminary would take place in the morning. Ironically, the reason it can't take place at dawn is because so many students must be at their field work churches, directing and leading "nice" sunrise services!

Let me share with you one of the most profound and moving worship experiences of my life. In fact, as with all intense and climactic events, I can hardly trust my memory. I am sure that any "objective", photographic record of that service would surprise me by revealing the extent of my subjective embroidery of what may have been rather simple cloth. But isn't this often the way the Lord works? Suddenly the commonplace is fraught with new meaning. That is what happened to me at Taize, France at the Paschal Vigil of 1969.

In fact, this "Sunrise Service" is what I would suggest as a model for a parish, or for any other community.

As I recall it, the Vigil service was scheduled to begin at the Church of Reconciliation at about 4:00 or 4:30 a.m. We drove from Geneva on Saturday afternoon, arrived at our lodging at about sundown, had a light supper and set two travel alarms. "If you're not there about 3:00, you won't get a seat," we had been told. "This had better be good," said a fellow from England as we were jangled awake at 2:30 a.m. Arising that early in the morning gives one a good chance of being in the frame of mind of the early church. They stayed up all night, preparing to celebrate the Lord's Supper, the resurrection banquet, at dawn.

At the church there was an intense stillness. A group of brothers was reading-reciting-chanting the Lamentations. The church was in complete darkness. I can't even remember any lighted exit signs. We were shown to our places by flashlight carrying ushers, but soon even they disappeared. The Church was filled, and latecomers were being seated outside. Inside, we waited --- waited and prayed in the complete blackness. Later I realized that it was the words of Psalm 119, interspersed with the Lamentations, that were continually surprising me. The brothers were singing, "My soul languishes for your salvation. My eyes fail with watching for your promise" (vv. 81-2, 123); "At midnight I rise to praise you" (v. 62); "I rise before dawn and cry for help. I hope in your words. My eyes are awake before the watches of the night" (vv. 147-8); as well as the familiar parts about the Word of the Lord being a lamp unto our feet and a light to our path (v. 105).

Then a stir. The music changed -- Spoken words in the darkness from John 1, about the darkness not overcoming the light. A fire lighted outside, a lighted paschal candle being carried in, the spreading of the light to the candles each one of us had been unconsciously holding. The effect of all those pinpoints of light was almost painful to my eyes. The words staggering in their intensity, that we must rejoice with the angels, for death could not hold the savior of the world. "Salvation was always God's loving plan," someone announced. And so we traced the story of salvation from Genesis, from Exodus, from the prophets. It wasn't just read, it was trumpeted. And when we responded it was like saying "I'm for that and that's for me" (an amplified translation of "Amen"!) We were caught up into the story which carried us on to the establishment of the church and a most "protestantized" version of the litany of the saints. "Ora pro nobis" (pray for us) had become "pro nobis." The witness of the saints was "for us", for apart from us they would not be made perfect. So we were caught up into the great cloud of witnesses as the dawn began to break. There was a sermon by Roger Schutz, the Prior of this reformed community. We renewed our baptismal vows and a new brother was received into the community (a Presbyterian from North Ireland, as I remember.) Then as the sun was about to break over the eastern horizon, we heard the invitation to the resurrection banquet. We had been on the Emmaus road. The Law and the Prophets had been opened to us, and we had seen that Christ the Logos, the Rock, had "followed" throughout the story (I Corinthians 10:4). Then the challenge for personal appropriation of the resurrection message, that our eyes might be opened to recognize him in the breaking of the bread, and the resurrection imperative to go tell, go live.

Sunrise, Son rise -- Fortunate English homonym. For the early Christian church, it wasn't just "nice". It was a biblical image. It was the model of Sunday worship. It was premeditated, structured covenant renewal, giving opportunity for entering the story, or entering into it anew. And it happened "very early in the morning, while it was yet dark."

The new Methodist worshipbook calls the Vigil "the First Service of Easter." So it is. In the early church it was the only service. It may become so again. And the best time for its observance is very early in the morning.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE PRINCETON SEMINARY STUDENT ADVISORY DELEGATES TO THE UPUSA GENERAL ASSEMBLY: Sandy Brawders, Deena Candler, Andy Choy, George Cladis, Linda Foley, Larry Jones, Doug Nason, Rick Tindall and Dan Smith!

ERA WARNING: RIGHT NOW would be a good time to write your Senator and Representative, urging their support of Bill H.J. Res 638, extending the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. Opponents or ERA are working hard to defeat the bill, using scare tactics to confuse and obscure the real issue--a fair chance for equality. Supporters cannot afford to be complacent! The economic boycott has become increasingly effective; more than 125 organizations have pledged to avoid confentions in unratified states. (See partial listing on Campus Center bulletin board.) If ERA loses, it can be interpreted only as a vote against equality for women. DON'T JUST WAIT FOR THAT TO HAPPEN--MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD AND YOUR VOTE COUNT--AND URGE OTHERS TO DO THE SAME.

NOTES

1. The program is presented in conjunction with the Continuing Education workshop "Musical Implications of the Proposed Book of Common Prayer." The entire Seminary community is invited to join in experiencing some new ways to use hymns, as well as meeting some recently composed hymns. Dr. Wyton, formerly organist/choirmaster at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, is one of America's best known church musicians and educators.

2. What was Ben Franklin's favorite hymn?...Which President wrote a hymn?...These and many other questions will be answered during Dr. Bristol's lecture. "Six Hundred Years of Musical Table Graces" is the topic announced for his second lecture, to be presented in Miller Chapel on Tuesday, 18 April, at 1:20 P.M. The Seminary Community is cordially invited to attend both presentations.

3. The Stewardship Committee has invited a number of service organizations and church outreach groups to participate. The purpose is to educate and motivate people--pastors or lay persons--to become aware of and involved in community projects which reach out and minister to the needs of the human community. Come in and browse--an invaluable way to spend those free moments before and after dinner!

4. The workshop is designed to enable us to assess the ways in which television affects our lives. It will feature TV program excerpts, evaluation, discussion and other projects on the creative use of TV. Dr. Neumeyer is a published author, an accredited Television Awareness Training instructor.

5. The programs are under the care of Dr. Gibson Winter and Dr. Koson Srisang. The series will conclude on 18 April with "Contextualisation of the Church," a presentation which will be made in Miller Chapel beginning at 7:30 P.M.

6. Dr. Sizer was educated at Ohio Wesleyan University, Miami University and the University of Chicago (where she took her Ph.D. in the History of Religions). Her background includes such diverse appointments as Consultant in Buddhist Bibliography, instructor in Black Religion in Society, acting assistant professor of religious studies (at Stanford University) and instructor in pietistic religious traditions. The author of several papers (Consent to Jesus--the revivalism of Dwight L. Moody; Levi-Strauss in Nashville; Demons and Dramas; etc., etc.), she has also written reviews, two of which, on Nancy Cott's "The Bonds of Womanhood" and Ann Douglas' "The Feminization of American Culture," will be found in Theology Today, and an article, "Politics and Apolitical Religion," to be published soon in Church History.

4. Dr. Schenke, who teaches New Testament at Humboldt University, is spending April in Princeton, working (at the Scheide Library) to prepare an edition of the Scheide Coptic Gospel of Matthew, which dates from about the 5th century.

5. The Musama Disco Christo Church, a prominent "spiritual church," is representative of independent Christianity in West Africa. At Queens, Professor Opoku teaches in the area of traditional African religions; he is writting a volume on "The Influence of Traditional African Religious Ideas on Christianity." He received both his B.D. and his S.T.M. degrees from Yale and is active in African affairs of the World Council of Churches.

6. The Evening will introduce the Seminary's Spring Arts Festival. Seminarian-musician Richard A. Farmer has performed throughout the United States and Canada; he has two albums to his credit, and a third is projected for the near future. The New Movement is a contemporary gospel group from Brooklyn--electric piano, bass and lead guitars, drums, flute, and three vocalists, all under the direction of Glen C. Misick, a Senior M.Div. student. The group performed earlier in Princeton at the Nassau Presbyterian Church, the Paul Robeson Community Center and the Princeton Shopping Center. The University's Gospel Choir, some 30 vocalists, has performed extensively through the eastern United States, while the Seminary's Gospel Ensemble is newly formed. Its performance may be judged by the face that members of the Paul Robeson Society who saw them during Black History Week persuaded them to present portions of their program in a benefit performance for the Society's scholarship fund.

2. Mr. Cleaver, a former Black Panther, is the author of "Soul on Ice" and "Soul on Fire"; his autobiography is to be published this month. Self-exiled from the United States in 1968, he travelled from Cuba through eastern Europe, gradually becoming disillusioned with communist governments. He eventually settled in France to a life of contemplation and political inactivity. Working one evening at his book, he interrupted his labors to look at the moon--to see there the faces of his past, Marxist, heroes; his own face; and, finally, the face of Christ. This was the turning point in his life: He returned to this country and to jail, continuing his studies in the Bible. This led to his present affirmation of Christ and his new ministry, The Eldridge Cleaver Crusade. "If I could be saved, then anybody in the world can be saved," he says. "I haven't met one single person since that night...that I don't love
